3rd October Edition

26-27 October - Piacenza - Italy

APIMELL: A SPECIAL EDITION FOR THE FUTURE OF THE SUSTAINABLE BEEKEEPING

Piacenza. From 26th to 27th October 2019 the trade fair autumn in Piacenza welcomes the return of Apimell special edition, the exhibition dedicated to beekeeping, apiary products and equipment.

Indeed, after a difficult year, the beekiping world meets in Piacenza and offers, in a 5000 sqm exhibition area, a comprehensive catalogue of equipment, products and technologies for industry professionals. Piacenza has always been the target market for professionals and plain enthusiasts who look for the best brands of the supply chain.

The preservation of biodiversity needs sustainable protections like the beekeeping sector, now facing the problems of climate change that undermines the honey production and hive life.

Defending the beekeeping sector is absolutely essential for the old continent as well: the European Commission announced that it will increase the support to EU beekeeping, giving 120 million euros to the sector in the next three years. The measures include beekeepers education, support to start beekeeping activities, pest control in the hives and research in order to improve honey quality.

Therefore Apimell, at this time, represents an important appointment to offer technical solutions to improve the production and to update on good hive management practices.

Apimell will propose, as usual, an interesting conferences program, available on www.apimell.it, with the participation of the major national trade associations.

There will be plenty of initiatives for encouraging the honey culture for the general public, the apitherapy and its possible beneficial applications. Precisely for the general public Apimell will combine with a market dedicated to the agri-food production of Emilia-Romagna: Emilia.Eat.

For the price of a single ticket, visitors can also visit the fifth edition of Forestalia, agro-forestry show, and Street Food Technology, exhibition space dedicated to mobile catering equipment.
